TRAINING

Mrs. Sara E. Hutchinson, our Coffee County Extension Chairman, will receive her Master of Science degree in Home Economics at Auburn University, Mrs. Hutchinson has been attending Auburn University this summer. For several years she attended off-campus classes at Headland completing her requirements.

I know that the Coffee County Home Demonstration Club members and other leaders and friends are happy for Mrs. Hutchinson in receiving this degree.

FARM BUREAU

President E. C. Brooks, Coffee County Farm Bureau, told me the other day that plans are complete for the annual Farm Bureau meeting which is to be held in New Brockton July 22.

Understand that all Farm Bureau members will receive a written notice of this meeting.

A lot of folks are working to make the annual meeting a big success. Director Phillip Martin is chairman of the program committee. Vice President Frank Britt is chairman of the food committee. From all reports, I am sure that this is going to be a top annual meeting of the Coffee County organization.

CATTLE CONFERENCE

All Coffee County cattlemen are invited to a two-day beef cattle conference in Auburn July 29 and 30. The program will feature some of the leading cattlemen in the United States. I am sure that a number of Coffee County beef cattle producers will want to attend. For more information on this conference, contact J. R. Speed, T. C. Whitman, or me.

HOW MUCH DID A COLOR TV COST 25 YEARS AGO?

Since I don't even 25 years ago there is no far way to estimate the cost. The same reasoning applies to the cost of today's prescriptions. Most of today's drugs don't even exist 25 years ago, so they could not be bought at any price when you consider the lives that have been saved, the rapid rates that have resulted from modern medicines, it is no wonder we say.

FORESTRY CAMP

The 4-H Forestry Shortcourse will be held August 3 at the Tuskegee National Forest. Four Coffee County 4-H'ers plan to attend the one-day meeting. The day's activities will include tree identification, measuring trees, selective cutting, and logging safety.

ANNUAL FARM BUREAU MEETING

The annual Coffee County Farm Bureau meeting will be held Thursday, July 22, at New Brockton. I'm sure that there will be plenty of food for the members present and that there will be a well-planned

WITHOUT SOIL

Ever thought about growing plants without soil? This method, called Hydroponics, is the hobby of many people. The main requirement for growing plants without soil is to provide a constant supply of fresh water. The plants not only take their oxygen supply from the water but also the many mineral elements needed for healthy growth.

You might want to try this as a hobby.

PEANUTS

Two weeks I largely determine how many peanuts you make on your crop this year. One is rainfall and the other is copper-sulfur or some other material for leafspot control. You cannot cure leafspot but it can be prevented. We recommend four applications ten days apart beginning about the 1st of July. Folks who planted late can start their control program now and help produce a high yield.

POULTRY

Last week I attended a three-day poultry school at Auburn. Most of the emphasis was placed on producing broilers but egg production and management of broiler flocks and other ideas on poultry were mentioned.

Broiler production is becoming a big business in Southeast Alabama. Coffee County is experiencing a rapid growth in this business. I thoroughly enjoyed the meeting at Auburn. The training I received will help me in my work with our broiler contractor and others.

CATTLEMEN VOTE

On Tuesday, August 10, Alabama cattlemen will vote on whether or not they wish to continue the statewide beef promotion program.

This program is financed by cattlemen who voluntarily contribute ten cents per head on each cow or calf they sell through licensed stockyards or to meat packers. Any cattleman who does not wish to participate in the program is not required to do so.

The beef promotion program is designed to increase the beef consumption in Alabama through advertising, education, marketing, research, and public relations.

Many pastures need an application of nitrogen this month, particularly where there is little or no clover. Sixty to seventy-five pounds per acre will provide a lot of grazing or hay this summer.

Establishment of permanent vegetative cover; improving established permanent cover; application of limestone on farmland; planting, interplanting or replanting trees; improving a stand of trees; establishing sod waterways; constructing terraces; constructing open drainage; constructing farm ponds for wildlife or livestock water; constructing cross fences; constructing erosion control dams; establishing of winter cover crops.

Please remember that producers who do not sign up during this period often receive a smaller cost share rate than others and sometimes we do not have sufficient funds available after the close of the sign-up period to approve any cost shares.

Each producer is urged to determine the practices needed on his farm and contact the County ASCS Office at New Brockton, Alabama, for assistance in filing application for cost shares.

IF ALWAYS putting things away so that no one else will be finding it and you know who can't find when needed - me, I spent several hours and three long distance calls Tuesday in my effort to find something I had put away, and I finally did find a good job of hiding it from me as well as the rest of the outfit.

THE ELBA Nursing Homes now in sight and it is believed that it will be ready by next summer. Everything is now ready for construction except a few legal formalities. Though a Dothan concern was the low bidder for construction they will be using as much local labor as possible which is always to the advantage of the area.

rate of juvenile delinquency, too many parents are leaving to the schools or the police department the job of training their children in concepts of right and wrong. So parents are delinquent before their children are.

IF IT KEEPS RAINING I'll be washed right on out of my office. A couple of weeks ago during a big rain it started all of a sudden pouring through the ceiling around the light fixtures right on top of my $40 dictionary, and my drapes were dripping and water falling right on through them to the floor. Everything was completely ruined, or appeared to be. I was not in Elba at the time and it fell to Mack, Ferrin and the girls to do what they could to save as much as they could. It hadn't leaked in my office and when it did it poured. Since no one was in the room which is considerable distance from the office it was not known until things were in bad shape. There was enough water on the floor that it was nearly ankle deep. They mopped until they were tired and then I had them to save the life or with a hope of doing so. After all that it came another hard rain and it really poured in the weight of so much water. I have had some calamities in the business but that has been the worst. I have ever experienced. Furniture and fixtures are still piled in another room waiting for the ceiling to be replaced and repainted. Eventually the trouble was found and there has been no leak since but all the damage already done I don't know if I'll ever get over it. The tragedy are muddled, the pages of the dictionary are wrinkled and the top of the desk is apparently ruined. I'm hoping to eventually get back in that office but will not be too confident that the same thing will not happen again. Every time it rains I'll be concerned. Leaky roofs give me nightmares.

WOMEN'S ENROLLMENT CLOSED AT U OF A
Women's enrollment for the fall semester, 1965, was closed at the University of Alabama on July 12 due to limited housing facilities. Although the University has doubled its housing for women students in the last four years, an unusually large enrollment plus an increasing retention rate of former students made the action necessary, according to Dean of Women Sarah L. Healy.

Students already notified of their admission or those whose applications were in progress at the time of the cutoff and were determined to have met admission requirements are assured of a housing assignment. University officials said.

A RABIES CLINIC has been set up for this area. Dr. Philip Hamm is announcing this issue of The Clipper the time and places he will be for this service. Since the purpose of a rabies clinic is to give owners of dogs and cats a convenient opportunity to get them given the shots to prevent the dreadful disease everyone has a dog or cat, be it a pet or hunting animal should take advantage of it. This is not a money-making thing but more or less a service to owners. If a pet should become infected with rabies there is a good possibility that it will or even a grown-up being bitten by the animal and then necessary for them to have to take the long series of shots required. He said and get your pets inoculated during this campaign.

SMALL WORLD - Tittle says commonly have their base in truth. "It's a small world" falls into that category. In terms of time, it has grown vastly smaller in late years. This is the doing of the jet age in which we can almost anywhere in the world in a matter of hours at speed which would have seemed unthinkable a generation or so ago. A lot of people have always been bitten by the idea of travel vast distances almost as a matter of course and ever increasing number are taking trips for pleasure, for business and for education. So now with the jet age distance has become no problem and the world has become smaller.

DAVID LAWRENCE said in a column recently that voting rights bill supporters will receive blame - not credit. He states "Five or six years from now - perhaps sooner - the American people may be interested indeed in whether the Republican or the Democratic party was responsible for the enactment of the latest 'rights' bill. The argument then will not be who is to receive the credit but who is to be blamed for having helped to take away from the States their right to fix the qualifications of voters and for having enacted legislation that penalizes some States while others are permitted to carry on discriminatory practices."

He asked "Why was Texas not covered under the President's initial voting-rights bill and is not effectively covered now? Why were vote frauds and dishonest elections, such as have occurred in Chicago and Texas, not covered under the President's proposal? Why shouldn't the right to vote be protected equally in every State, not just in seven States? Why should only 50 per cent of the Negroes be permitted to vote? Why should votes that are challenged be counted and, if found invalid, be used possible to determine the outcome of an election, including the election of a President?"

COLUMBIST David Lawrence writes: "Former President Eisenhower says that national political conventions are disorderly and undignified and that they should be reformed. But he doesn't go far enough. Actually, national conventions have outlived their usefulness and should be abolished. For they are undemocratic and unrepresentative. They are controlled by money and factions and by big city bosses."

Coffee County farmers will be attending this important meeting. It is always a pleasure for me to attend meetings and work with groups who are interested and supporting Coffee County agriculture.

OFFICERS
Frank Britt, of Enterprise, Route 1, was elected President of the Coffee County Farm Bureau which met in New Brockton last week. Phillip Martin, of Enterprise, Route 2, was elected vice president with Miss Sylvia Jones being re-elected secretary-treasurer.

The group had an excellent program for their annual meeting and was well attended by several hundred Farm Bureau members and their families. A barbecue dinner was enjoyed by everyone.

MECHANICAL
Several owners of mechanical cotton harvesters met at the Bill Weeks Service Station in Kinston last week to study and review the latest recommendations on operating mechanical pickers. Bill Weeks was host to the group.

Several folks attended this meeting including Monroe Myrard, H. M. Bryson, C. C. Patterson and his three sons, Foy Anderson, Q. P. Nobles, Howard Smith, Jr., Howard Smith, Jr., and several other operators and growers. J. T. Gaillard, our Specialist in Farm Mechanization, was there and led the discussion on the operation of mechanical harvesters.

DISEASES
I am happy to see the wide-spread use of copper-sulfur in Coffee County to prevent leafspot disease. A lot of our growers have already put on their third application. This is good. It is important to keep peanuts leaves on the peanuts until digging time. This practice will probably give a bigger return than any other one I am sure that several practice we know of. We recommend four applications of material ten days apart beginning around July 1.

COTTON INSECTS
Most cotton growers stop dusting or spraying for cotton insects too soon. Now that we are fast approaching the season when boll weevils are migrating and increasing in numbers, it is important to protect small bolls particularly from damage by weevils. Be sure to continue checking your cotton and use your judgement on how many more applications are needed.

HOG DIRECTORY
Extension Farm Agent J. R. Speed is developing an up-to-date directory on purebred breeding animals. We have had dozens of requests the past few weeks for information on purebred hogs. Mr. Speed hopes to keep an accurate record to help growers locate their requirements.

Incidentally, Coffee County ranks 4th in the State in hog production. We could easily be No. 1 in numbers. We plan to work on this.

4-H CLUB PICNICS
The annual picnic for the "club of the year" award winners will be held on Thursday and Friday of this week at Twin Wells on Highway 84 East. The picnic for the New Brockton elementary club officers will be held on Thursday, July 29. The picnic for the Mr. Pleasant junior club officers will be held Friday, July 30.

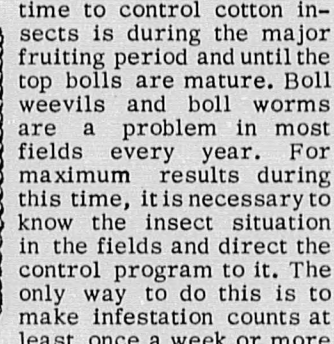

These picnics are a reward for material ten days achievement in carrying on the 4-H Club work in their schools. We are expecting 100% attendance of these officers.

LONG AGES ENGLISH FAIRS
The expression "to let the cat out of the bag," which means to reveal a secret, originated in the failure of a trick.

Long ago English fairs were primarily trade events to which farmers and merchants brought their goods to sell. Pigs were brought to the fairs in sacks. Sometimes an unscrupulous person would take advantage of this practice by putting a cat in a sack and selling it as a pig.

When a buyer insisted on looking into the bag, or by accident the cat escaped, then "let the cat out of the bag."

Peanut Growers Helping Themselves
"A man needs to look beyond his own gate. And, peanut growers are doing just that." That's the way E. C. Brooks, Route 2, Enterprise, Coffee County District 10, says. Brooks is president of the Alabama Peanut Producers Association. We started, we began to explain why farmers started trying to sell peanut butter and other products aimed at the consumer and the industry, than we ever have before. "And," Brooks pointed out, "we are getting results we can see. One example is the use of peanut butter. In the six years the amount used per year has grown at a rate four times faster than our population increase during the same period. "Even though we are trying hard and do have the results to prove we are not wasting our time," Brooks went on, "this is no time to stop and pat ourselves on the back. But, we still believe we are on the right track. We think we have a good base to operate from and expand our efforts. "One direction to go is the overseas market. In fact, we believe that some day that will be a very important part of our promotion. The value of American farm products exported has increased 80 per cent in the last seven years. This compares to an increase of only four per cent at home. We need to get our share of that export market."

Future Possibilities For The State Junior College Program

The development of the state junior college system in Alabama comes at a time when the number of persons in Alabama interested in obtaining a collegiate education is increasing rapidly. A record enrollment is forecast at most colleges and universities this fall. Because Alabama now has a larger number and a higher percentage of students graduating from high school, because more adults are interested in returning to college for further education, and because more jobs today require some college education, Alabama can expect a continuing increase in the number of persons who desire to attend college.

Many of the senior colleges and universities, however, have been forced to place some restrictions on the number of new students they can accept. In some cases these restrictions are caused by the lack of facilities or lack of qualified faculty members to teach the increased number of students. In addition, some senior colleges and universities are placing greater emphasis on upper division instruction in specialized subject fields; on the graduate school programs, on research projects; and on numerous public services to government, industry, and citizens. In the future, we can probably expect that the junior colleges will gain increased responsibility for educating college freshmen and sophomores.

The new state junior colleges are designed to serve many students who may not be able to attend a senior college or university because of financial, academic, or personal reasons. Furthermore, many of the state junior colleges plan to offer a diversified curriculum that will also include programs in terminal education, technical education, and community education. It is true that some areas of the state, including several well-populated communities, do not have the benefit of a public junior college nearby. It is possible that in the future additional areas of the state may qualify as junior college centers so that the junior college program will be readily available to all citizens of the state.

Because the junior college is designed to serve the post-high school educational needs of youth and adults in each section of the state, it is hoped that the junior colleges will continue to work closely with local groups interested in their programs with a view toward developing local advisory boards.

The new state junior college program is both a challenge and an opportunity—a challenge to develop quality post-high school educational programs throughout the state and an opportunity to meet the educational needs of all Alabama youth and adults.

Hello From The Far Northland

HIGH SCHOOL SENIOR ROUNDUP
BAYVIEW, IDAHO

July 16th was a busy day for the 16 girls from South Central Alabama Girl Scout Council for we arrived at the site of the 1965 Senior Girl Scout Roundup in Bayview, Idaho. Ever since we stepped off the train it has been almost impossible to stop and realize what a great opportunity we are enjoying. The "Goober Gals" patrol, of which I am a member, is in a troop with girls from Texas, Pennsylvania, and Massachusetts. The combination of accents and customs is really something to behold.

On the afternoon following our arrival, our patrol gave our demonstration—"The Making of Peanut Butter". Girls from all over the country were amazed to see how simple it is to make peanut butter. Many questions were asked and answered about the peanut, but perhaps the most frequently asked was, "Where do peanuts grow?"

Most of the girls were surprised to hear that peanuts grow in the ground rather than on bushes. After the 32 demonstrations in our camp had been viewed by the girls, the "Goober Gals" were lucky enough to be selected to participate in the Rendezvous and on the 21st we will present our demonstration for all campers and visitors to see.

Round-Up is the high point of Scouting for thousands of girls. All it takes is will, power, hard work and a dream. My dream is coming true, and maybe in the next few years girls from your home town will know that any dreams can come true.

Nonagricultural wage and salary employment, estimated at 5,830, registered an increase of 280 from March to June. The current figure was 480 above the June, 1964 level.

Manufacturing employment advanced to 2,800-320 above the March estimate. Textile and apparel added 90 workers and "other" manufacturing recorded an increase of 230 during the three months period.

Nonmanufacturing employment was placed at 3,050 in June, representing a drop of 40 from the March level. The seasonal layoff of 80 in government, which resulted primarily from the closing of schools for the summer, was partly offset by increases in construction and service establishments.

Unemployment in June was estimated at 300, an increase of 20 since March, compared to 3.1 percent in the current jobless total. March and 4.3 percent in measured 3.0 percent of June, 1964.

State Employment Estimates Increase
Woodrow W. Simmons, Manager of the State Employment Service Office, states that the Coffee County June employment estimates revealed an increase of 1,000 since the middle of March and 520 above the year ago level. The June total was 9,610 compared with 8,600 in March. The seasonal increase in agricultural employment accounted for approximately two-thirds of the total gain during the last three months.

Plans are sufficiently well developed to indicate that all fourteen state junior colleges will probably be in operation in September. In some cases the junior colleges will begin operations in temporary facilities, but it is expected that in the near future all of the junior colleges will be in their permanent facilities.

Widely most of the facilities have been air-conditioned with the expectation that the junior colleges in the future will operate on a year-round basis.

Much planning has gone into the development of the junior college system, although it is evident that some additional changes in regulations and curriculum offerings may be necessary in the future to adapt the junior college program to the changing needs of the state. There will be need for cooperation and coordination of programs and policies between the junior colleges and the high school, and between the junior colleges and the senior colleges and universities.

It is true that some areas of the state, including several well-populated communities, do not have the benefit of a public junior college nearby. It is possible that in the future additional areas of the state may qualify as junior college centers so that the junior college program will be readily available to all citizens of the state.

Because the junior college is designed to serve the post-high school educational needs of youth and adults in each section of the state, it is hoped that the junior colleges will continue to work closely with local groups interested in their programs with a view toward developing local advisory boards.

The new state junior college program is both a challenge and an opportunity—a challenge to develop quality post-high school educational programs throughout the state and an opportunity to meet the educational needs of all Alabama youth and adults.
